	Bosham Sunset Looking across the creek at Sunset towards Bosham Village in Chichester Harbour - this photo is made using a circular intentional camera movement.	£95
	Bosham at Low Tide Looking across Bosham Creek early in the morning with the tide out and boats peacefully at anchor - this photo is made using a horizontal intentional camera movement.	£95
	Wittering Beach As the winter sun sets over West Wittering Beach this picture uses a slow intentional camera movement to capture the colours.	£95
	Winter at West Wittering Sunset over West Wittering Beach on a cold day using an intentional camera movement to highlight the softly lit colours	£95
	A Burst of Bosham Looking towards Bosham Village on Chichester Harbour this picture uses a 'zoom burst' to make all the elements move outwards from the centre.	£95
	Woods on Fire Taken in my local woods this picture using a zig zag movement of the camera brings out the life in the old bracken while still showing the trees.	£95
	Bluebell Blur Using a classic vertical movement to keep the detail in the tree trunks and bring out the colour and brightness of the bluebells.	£95
	Pink Clouds Using the same approach as with the bluebells - moving the camera vertically - gets multiple images of these lovely dawn clouds.	£95
	Redlands Winter Colours Redlands wood near Dorking with dark pines, red bracken, a blue sawing machine and winter sky combining to great effect.	£95
	Impressions of Holmwood Common I have tried to create an impressionist view of my local walk by combining ten slightly different images in single frame.	£95
